HOW TO DISCOVER THE NEWLY MARRIED.

A more than usual number of wedding tourists are noticed by travellers and conductors on the different railroads.

Of course, it is not on account of being and examine his stock. ashamed of each other that they try to disguise their situation, but simply to avoid being criticised and remarked upon by profane strangers. Thus they lay the fond unction to their souls that they are traveling in cog. But, good gracious, how badly fooled they are. It is one of the easiest things in the world to the careful eye to tell precisely how many days, or even hours, they have been "spliced." They can sometimes be detected by the great pains they sometimes be detected by the great pains they take to appear either like old married people or cousins, as they promenade the deck of a next two months, especially. steamer, or sit so demurely in the cars. In many cases their dress, in part, exposes them. It is so apropos to the occasion, being neat, symmetrical and bran new. In cases where the parties have good taste, there is no gaudiare thrown aside, and the city belle appears and see us, at No. 83, King st., 3 doors west of more like a quakeress in her simple travelling Royal. Sometimes the youthful culprits engage in WILLIAM E. ATWELL, dress of drab or mouse color.

tray too much happiness for wit and repartee; there is such a peculiar softness and tenderness in their confidential whispers, and such a pride in their confidential whispers, and such a pride style.

Would announce to his friends and the public that he is again prepared to attend to all orders for work in his line, in his usually satisfactory mar 16—tf in the possession of each other, that none around them are deceived. It is generally the case that the bridgegroom makes the discovery first, and throws his arm carelessly around the JNO. W. BURKE. A. HERBERT. J. W. MAURY. shoulders of his wife, as much as to say, defi-antly to the envious, "Who's afraid? Who knows but that we have been married many years?" Not know?

The guilty slyness in the way that arm steals around, first on the top of the seat-back and then gradually closer, while the bride evinces silent pleasure as she acquiesces in a very unperceiving way. Indeed, it is she who "lets the cat cut of the bag'' most quickly. The narrow gauge seats are preferable to the broad gauge, and if you sit on the seat back of them you will observe at first that the lady's shoulders are not even-they incline just a little to her partner. After traveling in this position a few hours, her neck gets as limber as a washed paper collar and her head gravitates to the broad shoulders of her husband, and there it nestles innocently and confidingly in the repose of bonest, pure and truthful love. At times, in spite of all precautions, a tress or two of her golden locks will get loose and drop on her shoulder. But it almost seems that there is order and neatness in their very disorder and abandon. So they go, fancying themselves lost in the crowd-unnoticed, unknown, with their secret locked up intheir own palpitating bosoms. Poor young people !- Louisville Courier.

GEN. SCHOFIELD AS A POLITICIAN, -From the last number of the Columbus (Ohio) Crisis, we learn that Gen. Schofield, commanding the district of Virginia, has recently written a letter in which he says:

"The people of Virginia mistake the real significance of the Northern elections. The people of Ohio are not voting against colored suffrage in the South. They are only declaing by their votes that Congress has no right to impose it on them."

In reply to these views of the General, the Crisis says, forcibly and truly: "It is Schofield who mistakes the real significance of the Ohio election. The issue involved therein was not whether Congress should impose colored suffrage on Ohio; but whether negroes should have the right of suffrage at all; and as to the opinion of the people upon this subject we are authorized to refer to the fifty thousand majority against it. The people of Ohio as clearly pronounced their decision against colored suffrage everywhere, as they ever pronounced their decision on any ques-

TRESSES AND YOUNG WIDOWS.—That is a melancholy custom in Russia-the cutting off of a widow's hair and burying it in the coffin of ner nusband. It evidently originated in the jealousy of Russian lords who were determined that their widows should not look interesting until a sufficient time had already for the sufficient time had already fo until a sufficient time had elapsed for the grass to grow upon their graves. WHITE PEOPLE COMING. - We greet joyously the announcement in the Lynchburg papers that another party of English immigrants has arrived, under the auspices of the Virginia lumigration Society. They are said to be especially suitable for farm hands, gardeners, &c.
